My Stage

My family moved to Rockaway, New Jersey in the summer of 1978. It was there that my dreams of stardom began.

I was nine years old. Heather Lambrix lived next door, and she and I became best friends. I thought she was so lucky A _____. She took tap and jazz and got to wear cool costumes with bright sequences and makeup and perform on stage. I went to all of her recitals and B _____.

My living room and sometimes the garage were my stage. I belonged to a cast of four, which consisted of Heather, my two younger sisters, Lisa and Faith, and I. Since I was the oldest and the bossiest, I was the director. Heather came with her own costumes C _____. We choreographed most of our dance numbers as we went along. Poor Faith ... we would throw her around D _____. She was only about four or five ... and so agile. We danced around in our bathing suits to audiocassettes and records from all the Broadway musicals. We'd put a small piece of plywood on the living room carpet, E _____. And I would imitate her in my sneakers on the linoleum in the hall. I was a dancer in the making.

My dad eventually converted a part of our basement into a small theater. He hung two “spotlights” and a sheet for a curtain. We performed dance numbers to tunes like “One” and “The Music and the Mirror” from A Chorus Line. I sang all the songs from Annie. I loved to sing, F _____. I just loved to sing. So I belted out songs like “Tomorrow”, “Maybe” and “What I Did For Love.” I knew then, this is what I wanted to do with my life.

1. like she was a rag doll
2. whether I was good at it or not
3. wished I, too, could be on stage
4. and I designed the rest
5. and I was star struck
6. so Heather could do her tap routine
7. because she got to go to dance lessons

OXFORD UNIVERSITY DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION RANKED FIRST IN THE UK FOR RESEARCH

Oxford has been making a major contribution to the field of education for over 100 years and today this Department has a world class reputation for research, for teacher education and for its Masters and doctoral programmes.

The Oxford University Department of Education (OUDE) prides itself in being able to combine its international standing as a research-intensive department with the highest quality teaching. All full time academics in the Department are research active, many producing publications of outstanding international quality. In 2014 the evaluation of research in the UK (The Research Excellence Framework) placed the Department as the clear leader for educational research in the country. This achievement builds on the already outstanding success and position in the 2008 Research Assessment Exercise.

However the notion of being a ‘research-intensive’ department of education goes well beyond external evaluations of our research and its impact. It underpins the way we scrutinise and develop the postgraduate courses that we offer. It is embedded in the expectations we have of the tutors to provide students with sessions taught by experienced, research-informed practitioners. It is epitomized by our collaboration with other practitioners, policy-makers and those in industry. It is fundamental to our commitment to reach out to schools and colleges, locally, nationally and internationally, with a vision of transformative educational environments which make policy decisions based on research evidence and evaluations of effectiveness.

1. The Oxford Review of Education is one of the UK’s leading international education journals. It aims

A to publish important new work in a form that is accessible to a broad educational readership;

B to show the publishing activity of the academics;

C to publish the students' articles free of charge.

2. The Oxford Cambridge exchange is an annual event that usually takes place during the summer term. It's a great opportunity for students from both departments

A to exchange their life experience;

B to network and discuss ideas;

C to spend more time together.

3. The University of Oxford and the Department of Education provide a stimulating academic and social environment for study. The department itself is ...

A a friendly academic community where research and students are strongly supported;

B a great place to find new friends and research consultants;

C a wonderful opportunity to be in a friendly atmosphere and to express your point of view.

4. The DPhil (which is known internationally as a PhD) in Education is a full-time programme which takes 3-4 years and which is intended to provide ...

A highly-qualified tutors to work with the students;

B scientists who make researches in different fields of science;

C graduates with a wide range of research skills as well as in-depth knowledge, understanding and expertise in their chosen field of research.

5. Students come to Oxford University from over 40 different countries and are supported by a variety of scholarships and grants. Entry is highly competitive, and applicants are required to have and to submit a research proposal.

A a strong academic background;

B a strong desire;

C an opportunity to pay for education.
